issued as usual to-morrow. THE Tribune has gone into the dimenovel business, and is now a competitor with Bonner for the thrilling stories of Sylvanus Cobb, jr.

THEY had an earthquake in Massachusetts yesterday. We do not wonder that the very elements are indignant at the political result in that State a few weeks ago.

VIRGINIA will have a good opportunity in 1876 to secure the construction of the James river canal. She will have a strong delegation in the Democratic House. Let us see what they will obtain for her.

THE LECTURE of Carl Shurz on "Educational problems" is attracting a good deal of attention. Why does not some college make him its president and see how he would get along? As a politician he is a failure, as a soldier he was not a success, but as a college professor he might win a lasting name and fame.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS have been expended by the General Government on the Atlantic coast in the improvement of harbors, the erection of light-houses, &c., &c. Has not the time arrived when something should be done for the interior, to enable the farmer to get his grain to market without giving more than one-half his crop and his profits to the railroad monopolists who control the New York press?

THE joint committee of Congress charged. with the formation of a new government for this District has given to the world a synopsis of their recommendations, and all the Opposition papers are delighted. We are to be the happiest community on the face of the earth. Washington is to be a the interests of the Administration," whatever that may mean, and we shall have "no politicians," "big or little." "never are, but always to be blest."

IN AN ABTICLE on the Southern States distinction of having won the praise of the White League press for its course in the late campaign, says: "State governments "ought no longer to be bolstered up by "Federal power." This is an extraordinary proposition, and the majority of people who know something of the Constitution of the United States will be at a loss to understand it. There are some pretty plain himself to impeachment. But what our cotemporary means to insinuate is that in this whole Southern question the President has overstepped the exact line of his duty. If so, will it be good enough to point out Louisiana, or Texas, or Arkansas? Let us have all the facts in the case,

CHEAP TRANSPORTATION The report prepared by Mr. Windom upon the subject of cheap transportation of the products of labor contains many interesting statements of fact with which every man should become familiar. The actual annual movement of 213,000,000 bushels of grain from the wheat fields of the Northwest to the Eastern and Southern markets for consumption and export, upon which an economy of movement averaging twenty cents per bushel could be made by making the improvements recommended in that report, is a most startling announcement. This is almost $43,000,000 per annum to be saved upon grain alone. The economy upon all other agricultural and mineral products would be in like proportion. 'The resulting benefits," says the report, "than double the entire cost." These chan-$160,000,000 (the lowest estimate being $120,000,000, and the highest $155,000,000) for the four great water routes, would thereafter doubly pay for their cost every year. These are facts which are agreed to by a mixed committee of Republican and | Europe or upon this Continent who would Democratic Senators. There was no dissension or disagreement at all upon these points, and the deduction from them of the above results. But when it came to a question of power resident in Congress, which means the people, to do these economical things, then these Democrats who are constantly shouting economy in our ears until we are deaf. are very doubtful on the subject. Their economy is of the "penny wise and pound | become satisfied that it is only spasmodic, foolish" order. They are ready to save a and not likely to become chronic. few drops which a "poor devil" is catching at the spigot, but they are not troubled going on by the loss, ship-load after shipoad, of grain and cotton which Britain takes of Russia and India, because they furnish them cheaper than we can.

The same report states that Russia fur nished Britain, from 1860 to 1864, inclusive, 47,376,809 bushels of wheat. We furnished her, during the same period, 127,047,126 bushels. Now, observe the contrast. From 1868 to 1874, inclusive, Russia furnished 117,967,022 bushels against 116,462,380 from the United States in the same time. lions in the supplies taken from us. Supin these matters from our present position, and we shall be utterly driven from the British grain market. Our cotton exports show a similar state of affairs. In 1860 Great Britain took from us 1,115,890,608 pounds of cotton as against 275,048,144 we sent her 625,600,080, while other countries furnished her 783,287,399 pounds. In other words, India is rapidly driving our cotton from the British market.

Shall we submit to this, or shall we turn the tide it our favor by cheapening production and transportation, so as to maintain our footbold in the markets of the world? But the Democrats come up and say this proposition that the people shall use their own credit and their own money to create channels through which they may exchange the products of their own labor is monstrons. It cannot be tolerated for a moment. They say we must pay tolls to the railroad monopolists, because we have not the power as a Government. Congress has power to make and carry on a war, even to the extent of running the country into thousands of millions of debt. It is all right to create a debt if the purpose is to desirey life and property, and stop prodiction and paralyze all the industries of the country. There is no doubt about the constitutionality of this at all. But when we propose to spend twenty to thirty millions per annum in the interest of popular economy, by "regulating commerce between the States and upon the navigable rivers," for the purpose of making the net proceeds of the grain of the farmers higher and the bread of the laborer lower, for the purpose of stimulating production and increasing the tax-paying capacity of the whole people, it is all wrong, say these Democrats. The New York World, which assumes to be the organ of the Democrats, will not harbor the idea of the people having any power to help themselves in this dilemma for a moment. The Tribune, which is the would-be organ of the Democracy, has not "flattened its foot" upon this ques tion quite yet. It probably hesitates whether it is best to rudely thrust away the sympathy and support of all the disciples of the late Horace Greeley in the schools of internal improvements and protection of American industry which are supposed to still remain among its readers. But the time is at hand when all must decide upon this question of the power of the people to rescue themselves from the hands of the money kings. No public man and no newspaper can be upon both sides of this question. It is the paramount question of the hour. THE SOUTHERN LABOR SYSTEM

The statement is going the rounds of the press that lands in the cotton States have greatly depreciated in price since the war. In Alabama, for instance, plantations, or portions of the lands composing them, which were marketable at seventy-five dol lars per acre formerly, may now be bought as low as ten dollars or even five dollars per acre. These statements are no doubt true but what is the cause of this immense depreciation? The evil is one of great magnitude and one for which a remedy should be found. It is difficult to apply a remedy in any instance while ignorance regarding the cause of the evil prevails. The occasion once given, intelligent investigation may evise some adequate remedy. As applied dustry in cultivating the soil is what prinarily gives value to farm lands, it is fair to uppose that the depreciation complained of Alabama is chiefly owing to the disturbed condition of her system of labor. There is not enough of it, or what there is now in the State is not properly applied. Indeed, we presume there are few who will deny that these are the facts.

Antecedent to the war the cotton lands of Alabama were chiefly tilled by the compulsory system of labor. Since that period the attempt to introduce the voluntary system has not met with the most favorable success. This is indicated by the reduction sort of a paradise-"it is not to be run in | in the value of improved lands. The next question which confronts the inquirer who is endeavoring to solve this problem is, why has this attempt at success of the voluntary system failed? Is the fault with the laborer or is it with the employer? The material is still there. The numbers of the laborers the New York Times, which enjoys the have probably increased during the last ten years, and if proper rewards are paid for services rendered, why are not the results such as to keep up the prices of the lands? These are vital questions with Southern land owners. They are questions which must be answered, and truthfully, too, before they can sell their lands even at the present minimum valuation. No immigrant wants lands at any price in a country provisions in that instrument upon this sub- in which efficient labor cannot be procured. iect which the President, when called upon | If it be a fact that the colored labor of Alato do so, cannot refuse to obey without bama cannot be depended upon to make violating his oath of office and subjecting | crops if well and regularly paid, let it be frankly stated, so that a land purchaser may understand when he buys Alabama lands that it will be necessary for him to take along with him the hands for its tillage. On the contrary, if the present labor where and when he did so? Was it in | is good and efficient let it be known why it kappens that prices of lands are so low. If it is because labor is considered a disgrace to the white man, and he will not work, let that fact also be understood. It is an old commercial maxim that nothing is cheap which you neither want nor can exchange again at any time for the money

tion of labor. If a man can go there and purchase land at ten dollars per acre, and, by a proper expenditure of labor, can bring back the price of that land to its maximum value of $75 per acre by producing large crops every year, the temptation to emigrate would be very strong, and probably large numbers would yield to its influence. But if, upon the other hand, a man who purchases these lands is to be obliged to work them at the dictation of "will, for all time, annually repay more | the Alabama cross-roads mob, pay his hands as his neighbors pay theirs, vote the nels once constructed, at a cost of less than | ticket which they vote, and drink the toests which they propose, and follow the flag which they honor or suffer the loss of property and life by being shot down like dogs by masked devils in ambush, we imagine there are but very few either in

The incumbrances would be altogether too heavy. Agriculturists everywhere enjoy peace and quiet. They demand steady and reliable labor in order to mature their crops and harvest them. They will not go into a disturbed community to settle until they know the cause of the disturbance, and consider rich lands at $10, or even $5, per acre much of an inducement to settlement

If it be true, therefore, that the lands of Alabama have depreciated so greatly since by the "waste at the bunghole," which is the war, and that the cause of the depreciation is the scarcity of the labor necessary to till them, or the failure of the voluntary system of labor, and that the failure of that system has resulted from insecurity of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" in the State, except at the dictation and under the protection of White Leagues, there is but little use in the endeavor to change the labor system by immigration during the present generation. must pass before the rich cotton lands of Alabama will again comman'l $75 per acre Here is an increase of overseventy millions | for cultivation.
